The theme has a license to use the comic character 'Iron Man' created by Marvel Comics. It also has a license to use it's logo and all other imagery from the comic book. Some other developers might not believe this is such a great fact. We do, because it pays off. It is a great comic character and we can use it in a whole range of interesting ways. We can create our own version of it. Some themes are almost completely indistinguishable from the official theme. We have managed to make a sophisticated version with our own artwork and still pay homage to the original. This is a premium theme. Some of you might have heard that this theme is no longer being updated. The truth is that there are always a few people out there that want to support developers. This theme was initially created in order to promote our product, the Rainmeter. Our product supports all kinds of different themes including the one you are downloading right now.
