after flashing supersu you will need to enable the s-off option. this is the way to reboot your phone into the original bootloader. for many devices, this option can be found in the recovery menu. for others, you will need to perform a full reboot and boot to recovery (if youre rooted, you can perform the full reboot without rebooting into recovery). you will need to unlock the bootloader. do this by navigating to the supersu folder you just flashed and going into the supersu.bin file and selecting flash (fastboot).

this will actually flash the bootloader. now, to perform the actual unlock, you'll need to navigate to supersu and go into the supersu.bin file again and select unlock. this will allow you to reboot your phone and go to the main bootloader menu. from there, you can select wipe and select swipe to unlock. this will wipe your phone clean (including all of your data). you will then need to select reboot and enter the google pin. once your device is up and running, you can flash the supersu file again. 5ec8ef588b
